

How Confident Are You in Your SHARS Compliance?

Medicaid supports special education—but compliance gaps can quietly undermine reimbursement, audit readiness, and trust. Most districts don't realize where exposure exists until it's flagged.

Take a moment to assess:

PCS Documentation & Competency Tracking

Where districts struggle:

- Consistent PCS service logs
- Clean IEP-minute alignment
- Proof of provider competency & verification
- HHSC audit-ready files

What strong systems provide:

- Automatic IEP alignment
- SHARS-ready service documentation
- Always-on audit readiness

Why it matters:

PCS documentation and competency records drive compliant SHARS and audit exposure.

Parental Consent Management

Where districts struggle:

- Collecting and storing forms in a consistent location
- Proactive expiration alerts
- Consent tied to services
- Clear compliance ownership

What strong systems provide:

- Real-time consent visibility
- Fewer billing delays
- Confident claim authorization

Why it matters:

Missing or expired consent can quietly delay or eliminate reimbursement.

Billing, Denials & Oversight

Where districts struggle:

- Denials and pending tracking
- Service-to-submission timelines
- Payment versus expectation reconciliation
- Shared SPED and finance reporting

What strong systems provide:

- Faster, cleaner submissions
- Denial trend insight
- Predictable revenue forecasting

Why it matters:

Limited SHARS billing visibility can hide denials, delays, and lost revenue.

RMTS & Cost Reports

Where districts struggle:

- Accurate participant list
- Training and survey certification tracking
- Pre-submission internal reviews
- Year-round audit readiness

What strong systems provide:

- Centralized RMTS training records
- Cleaner cost report prep
- Fewer deadline scrambles

Why it matters:

RMTS and cost reporting are high-stakes and training-dependent. Small gaps can create big delays.

Leadership Lens (Superintendents & CFOs)

Where districts struggle:

- Biggest compliance exposure
- Real-time SHARS performance
- Guideline change readiness
- Manual process risk

What strong systems provide:

- Shared SPED and finance view
- Built-in risk reduction
- Simplified compliance support

Why it matters:

SHARS risk and revenue are harder to manage without shared visibility.
